HITLER SAID TO PLAN INVASION OF ENGLAND TOMORROW; BOATS ASSEMBLED READY FOR EFFORT

Believe Attempt Will Be Made To Land Troops at Nearest Point on Southeast Coast, Which is Dover — Harbor
Choked With Craft

(By H. R. Knickerbocker, I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Sept. 12—The hottest tip today is that Nazi Germany's invasion of England is coming tomorrow.

Like all tips, this one will be considered guesswork by those ignorant of its source. But it happens to be the consensus of most knowledgeable people around this tract.

Those who have been studying the career of Hitler do not believe this Nazi Caesar is going to strike at London directly but consider he is going straight for the nearest point on the southeast coast, which is Dover and its vicinity.

There is positive information that accumulation of shallow-draft small craft in German-held ports opposite the southeast coast seems now to have reached the saturation point for harbor facilities.

These motor boats, flat-bottomed scows and other vessels for carrying and landing tanks have been assembled over a period of many weeks, but their concentration during the last four days has been intensified.

It is the firm belief of the best-informed that Hitler's principal aim in having his Luftwaffe torture London as it has done since Saturday was to distract attention from these preparations for invasion.

The British people's cry for reprisals, however, has been ignored by the authorities, who consider it infinitely more important to hamper invasion than to indulge the natural desire to hit back at a savage with his own weapons.

The Royal Air Force has slashed fiercely at these enemy flotillas and done much damage but admittedly not enough to stop an attempt at invasion if Hitler is determined upon it.

LONDON, Sept. 12—Swarms of British bombers co-operated with naval units today in a major campaign to smash continental preparations for an attempted invasion of Britain.

Heading Prime Minister Churchill's warning that such an attempt might be launched within a week, bombers of the RAF during the night bombed the German held port of Calais on the French coast.

Today watchers at Dover on the English shore could see huge fires rising from Calais as a result of these newest assaults.

LONDON, Sept. 12—Bringing new hope to battered London, military officials announced today that a revolutionary new system of anti-aircraft defense eliminating the use of searchlights had frustrated a Nazi plan to devastate the capital last night.

Although Nazi bombers in a night long raid scored a number of hits, hammering the offices of the London Evening Standard and the Daily Herald.

Garbed in Chinese native costume, Miss Hoe gave an interesting informal talk, and answered many questions. She stated that although she is a Presbyterian, the denomination does not matter in China, as all feel they are striving for one goal, Miss Hoe's mother became a Christian following an operation in a hospital, and later became a doctor. Miss Hoe also has a brother who is a physician.

Miss Winifred Harding, for approximately 30 years a resident of Solebury, died Monday night, at the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Flanagan, Solebury, after a lengthy illness.

Install New Reducing Equipment in Salon Here

There is a new and highly scientific approach to reducing which has just been installed in Ida's Beauty Salon called the suction cup or Pneumostatic method. It works on the principle that increased circulation of blood through fatty tissue will "burn up" the fleshly cells, thus reducing both weight and measurements. One of the advantages of the suction cup reducing method is that those upon whom it has been used, seem to have no trouble keeping their weight down.

"Each treatment takes but 10 to 12 minutes; is quite refreshing and entirely harmless. It may be used for all-over fattiness, or may be applied to special areas such as ankles, calves, thighs, hips and any other spots where more pleasing contours are required. Many hospitals use the Pneumostatic with physicians' endorsement," says Ida's Beauty Salon.

Meeting at "Fonthill;" Also Treasure Hunt

TEA IN THE PAVILION

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 12—A total of 256 buckets of flowers were collected during the past month by the Doylestown Nature Club in connection with the Flowers for the Flowerless plan of distribution, this large number of blooms being taken to Philadelphia distribution centers.

At the meeting of the club held this week at "Fonthill," a gift of a book, "The Hand Book of Trees and Shrubs," was presented from a nursery, this to be placed on the Nature Club's shelf in Doylestown Library.

Mrs. Harry Shoemaker, chairman of the Arboretum committee, for the benefit of the new members, showed a chart of the Fonthill grounds laid out by H. C. Mercer. She explained that in 1912 it was all farm land. Since then over 2000 trees have been planted and an accurate account of the trees and plants, of all donations, and of clippings pertaining to the arboretum, has been kept. There are now many magnificent trees, especially the stand of 200 white pines. Although originally started for an arboretum, many flowers and shrubs have been added. The club's first flower show was held in 1920.

For the afternoon's entertainment, Miss Laura Anderson planned a treasure hunt through the grounds. Each member was given a pencil and paper, and prizes were awarded for the greatest number of treasures seen in 20 minutes, whether bird, trees, flowers, etc.

Congress The Time Saver

Washington, Sept. 11.
IT seems agreed now that Congress can finish its job within the next three weeks and quit early in October. There will be things left undone which should be done. And some of the things done will have been poorly and inadequately done.

BUT, in the main, the work of Congress in the last three months has been vital and it has been responsive to the needs of the nation in a critical period. It, of course, is too bad that it seems likely to adjourn without action upon the NLRB amendments designed to correct the more glaring injustices of the Wagner Labor Act. And it is to be regretted that apparently it will not pass at this session the Walters-Logan bill, which would check the abuse of power by the Federal regulatory boards and commissions. Both these measures were passed by big majorities in the House but are blocked in the Senate by Administration leaders.

IT is also true that the tax bill will fail to provide more than an insignificant fraction of the revenue needed to pay for the huge defense program, and that this is a dangerous omission of an obvious duty. Yet the responsibility for this failure cannot be put wholly upon Congress. The real load should rest upon Mr. Roosevelt, who has provided for this phase of national defense neither leadership nor support. On the contrary, he has operated—and still is operating—as though it were not necessary to pay for the program at all; as though the only essential was to have Congress pass the appropriation bills and for him to sign them. The question of paying is not discussed on Page Two

GOOD IDEA IF IT WORKS

THE INDIANS' TRICE

Major league baseball is frankly a commercial enterprise, and its stewards are under no compulsion to set it up as a character-builder. Yet standards for the conduct of the players as sportsmen do exist, and are none the less immutable for being largely unwritten.

A state of affairs which has continued since Spring in the Cleveland club is no service to a game whose fortunes rise and recede with the public's esteem. The Indian squad appears to include an unusually large number of clubhouse lawyers and malcontents. Though he has driven them to the top of the league, the manager, Vitt, is in poor grace with his charges. As set forth in a unique document, signed by most of them earlier in the season, he makes them nervous.

An episode quite as strange is reported from Washington. The Indians, meeting there "in secret," pledged themselves to undivided concentration on the winning of the pennant, "regardless of any feeling against Manager Vitt." All else must be subordinated to finishing in first place, the boys told one another during the session.

The news that paid athletes have dedicated themselves to do what they are paid for in any event will not arouse a tidal wave of feeling in their behalf. On the contrary, it is impossible to think of a more unpopular contender in modern baseball.

AN OKLAHOMA ISSUE

In the course of his nation-wide campaign tours following his speech in Coffeyville, Kansas, September 16, Wendell Willkie will encounter many state issues, some of which he may be able to mix into his campaign strategy with profit. Oklahoma presents an instance.

The Grand River reservoir is fast filling up, the Federal government has so far refused to replace vital roads and bridges which are inundated and residents in the area are forced to give up life-long traveling habits. Some urban communities are heavily penalized through loss of shoppers. Governor Phillips is opposed to using state money to replace bridges and roads that the government caused to be flooded. But his efforts to get sufficient Federal money for the replacements have been futile.

At the base of the dispute is the right of the Federal government to take the property of any state without fair compensation. Phillips is fighting this injustice at Grand River as well as at the Denison project bordering Texas. Both of these are public power projects, built with taxpayers' money to drive privately-owned companies out of business.

Hitler is highly incensed because British flyers are dropping bombs on Germany. The five astrologers are said to be seeing adult-sized stars that aren't even in the book.

The Great Game of Politics

cussed at the White House; not considered by the President; is forgotten by the leaders.

IT seems incredible that the great basic fact should be ignored that no nation can be strong enough to defend itself unless its financial structure is solid enough to stand the strain. Yet that, in effect, is the situation as Congress, after three months of intense concentration on defense measures and the authorization of fifteen billions of dollars, is about to adjourn after passing a tax bill so thin that no one defends it. Realistic Treasury officials, who grasp what fifteen billions of dollars means to debt and deficit, are shocked at its puny proportions.

—O—
AND even this bill would not exist if Mr. Roosevelt had had his way.
He did not—and said he did not—want to take up the question of taxes "until later," which was generally interpreted as meaning after the election. Also, it may be recalled that Mr. Roosevelt wanted Congress to adjourn last June, immediately after it had made the initial appropriation of four billion for which he asked. Upon two press-conference occasions that month he expressed the belief that "no good purpose" would be served by staying in session.

—O—
IT was popular sentiment and Congress itself that kept it on the job.
This seems now to have been a very fortunate thing for the country. Because if the President's wishes had prevailed, neither the conscription legislation nor the ten billion additional dollars needed for defense could have been acted upon. Even if he had called Congress back to Washington, months would have been wasted and the whole defense program delayed.

—O—
CONGRESS not only has not refused any demand made in the name of defense but, by rejecting the President's request that it go home in June, has advanced preparations for defense several months. If time is important—and everybody will agree it is—it is Congress which has saved time, and not the President. And it is Congress which has foreseen the need of some time, in some way, paying the bill and has made, trifling though it is, a start in that direction—and not the President.
Yet, Mr. Roosevelt's propaganda bureau is basing its claim on his indispensability upon the contention that he has accurately foreseen the nation's defense needs.
The facts disprove it.

"CUPID RIDES A BUS" by POLAN BANKS

SYNOPSIS

Ronny Rokaby, crooner "Crown Prince of the Air," has "Ginger" Drake, talented performer, blacklisted because she will not marry him. Her booking agent says she cannot get a job even as hat-check girl in the city. However, he offers her a spot at the Club Caribbean in Miami, on condition that she get there Monday. Ginger jumps at the opportunity. Now the question is:
Where can she raise the needed travel expenses?

CHAPTER II

Abysmally depressed, Ginger gravitated toward Bryant Park, where at length she found a bench.
Oblivious to the admiring impact of cruising masculine stares, she tried to think a way out of her predicament, but with little success. It looked as if O'Riley was right about her career, if she could not get to Miami. She would have to take any kind of job at all, soon, simply to be able to eat. Her spirits sank perceptibly lower at the thought.

A man sitting on the other end of the bench, who had hitherto been absorbed in an evening paper, put it down on the seat between them, and walked off. Ginger picked it up. She might just as well be finding that job now as later.

She glanced idly at page one first, from force of habit rather than interest. Kings might abdicate, floods in China kill millions, tragedy stalk the air lanes, even movie stars shoot their husbands; these abstractions were of little moment beside the reality of a setback in her career and the persecution of a crooner scorned.

The headline screamed blackly across the front page:

"BONKHEER DIAMOND STOLEN IN BROAD DAYLIGHT"

Ginger scanned the sub-headlines beneath, not because she was particularly interested, at the moment, but because, being American, she did not want to miss anything.

The famous Bonkheer Diamond, one of the largest uncut diamonds in the world, which, recently discovered, had been brought to New York in the hope of selling it to some multi-millionaire, had been stolen that afternoon from the case in which it was on exhibition in the Fifth Avenue shop of one of the metropolis's most prominent jewelers. It was a pure white stone, Ginger gathered, and worth a quarter of a million dollars. Her skimming eyes caught phrases: "International ring of jewel thieves suspected," "police dragnet out," "most brazen jewel theft of the century."

Ginger shrugged her shoulders, as she impatiently began to turn the pages, looking for the classified advertisement section. She would give all the diamonds in the world, at the moment, for the price of a bus fare to Miami. She reached the section she sought and began intently to peruse the columns.

Her questing glance fell first on that, under the caption of Personals, Fats held it there.

"Party motoring to Florida will take passengers willing to share expenses gas and oil.

Fourteen dollars each. Tel.
Taylor—Wick. 3-2345."

Ginger caught her breath. Tremblingly, she opened her purse again, and recounted her tiny fortune. She still lacked about eleven dollars with which to join this share-expense expedition to the immediate land of her dreams. Ginger expelled her breath in a long sigh, then caught it again as she clutched at her wristwatch. Less than half an hour before the pawnbroker had offered her ten dollars for it. Perhaps she could talk him into adding another dollar; in any event, she could always scrape that much together. Food up a few minutes ago—a man and his wife.

"Oh," said Ginger. The thought of a chaperone, or chaperones, had not occurred to her until that moment. "How far are you going?"
"Last stop, Miami," said the voice. "Were you interested in joining up?"

"Very much, but I suppose you haven't got any more room?"
"Plenty more," he answered.
"There's no worry on that score.
But the hitch is, we're leaving tomorrow morning—early."

Ginger sighed an audible sigh of relief.

The headline screamed: "Bonkheer Diamond Stolen in Broad Daylight." and lodging on the road would have to take care of itself—transportation to Miami was all that mattered.

Hurrying to the nearest telephone booth, she rang the number given in the advertisement, her heart in her mouth. Supposing this Taylor party had already filled his car? Supposing she were too late?

The ringing stopped, and a masculine voice answered.

"Hello?"

"This is Tony Taylor," said the voice, amiably.

"I just saw your advertisement in the paper. Mr. Taylor. About a passenger to share expenses to Florida." She hesitated. "Are you going—alone?"

"No," said Mr. Taylor. "There's four others. A lady and a gentleman, that signed up this morning.
And some folks that just called me

It's no chore to keep the cookie jar full if you follow time-saving recipes calling for sweetened condensed milk. They're magically easy to make and they're as crunchy and toothsome as the kind that take five times as long to accomplish.

Young would-be cooks like to lend a helping hand in preparing these cookie treats. For their failure-proof, and register a triumph for the cook every time.

Capture Exotic Air Of Far Places With Travel Party

Celebrate "Travel America" Year by giving a South American party. Feature tango dancing and food dainties from southern lands, and really capture some of the exotic atmosphere of far away places.

A fruit centerpiece for the dining table would be appropriate at such a party, with tiny Argentine dancing figures around it. A very luscious spice cake with plenty of strong, black coffee would make tempting refreshments. It's a good idea to serve decaffeinated coffee so that the guests may drink endless cups, in the leisurely South American way, without counting sheep later on. Or surprise your guests with a spicy mixture of chocolate and coffee, another "South American way" that has won travelers' enthusiasm.

Coffee, South American Way

4 tablespoons decaffeinated coffee, regular or drip grind 6 cloves
1 four-inch piece stick cinnamon
Dash of salt
4 cups milk
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
3/4 cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1 egg, well beaten

Add coffee, cloves, cinnamon and salt to milk, and heat in double boiler until milk is scalded. Strain and return to double boiler. Add chocolate and heat until chocolate is melted. Beat with rotary egg beater until blended. Combine sugar and flour; add gradually to chocolate mixture and cook until thickened, stirring constantly; then continue cooking 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool slightly; pour over egg and blend, or serve hot. Top with whipped cream, if desired. Makes 1 quart coffee.

Drip Coffee

Use one well rounded tablespoon drip grind decaffeinated coffee for each cup (1/2 pint) of boiling water. Pre-heat drip coffee pot. Put coffee in upper compartment of pot. Pour fresh, briskly boiling water over it. Cover and let stand in warm place until all water has dripped through once. Remove upper compartment and cover pot. Serve.

HONEY HINTS

Like honey? If so you'll like the following unusual honey recipes that are extremely popular in many homes.

Just the thing for that "something special" for guests:

Honey Oatmeal Muffins

1 egg
1 3/4 cups milk
3 cups flour
3 cups oatmeal
6 teaspoonsful baking powder
2 tablespoonsful shortening
1/2 cup honey
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
2 teaspoonsful salt

Beat egg lightly, melt the shortening and mix with honey. Add this mixture to beaten egg. Mix together the flour, oatmeal, baking powder, salt, and nut meats. Alternately add milk and flour to egg and honey mixture until all milk and flour has been added. Bake in well greased muffin tins for 30 minutes in hot oven. (Will make 36 muffins.)

Honey Pear and Cream Cheese Salad
16 canned pear halves

Chopped walnuts

1 cake cream cheese
1 tablespoonful honey
Arrange the pear halves individually on nests of white lettuce leaves, cavity side up. Fill hollow with honey (about one-half teaspoonful to cavity). Drop a few chopped nuts in honey-filled pear hollow.

Mix the cake of cream cheese and tablespoonful honey together. Place this mixture in pastry decorating tube or bag and make a rosette around the cavity filled with nuts and honey.

One cake of cream cheese mixed with the honey as specified will make 16 rosettes.

THAT'S why we say we'd like to see an American Flag in every home in America—in every home in our town, at least. If you have a flag in good condition, use it. Run it up! Hang it out! If you don't have a flag, we'll help you get one.

Help us to make it a principle to be honest and kind; help us to keep that principle shining in our sky like a fixed star. So many people depend upon seeing that star. Harrisburg, Sept. 12—Reporting on a year's investigation into the division of unemployment compensation, political hot-spot of the last administration, P. Stephen Stahlnecker, chairman of the Unemployment Compensation Board of Review, today disclosed that 115 civil service employees have been dismissed.

The unemployment compensation employees were discharged, stated Stahlnecker, "for falsification of their applications or lack of qualifications." In addition to these, 481 non-appointees have been removed from the civil service eligible lists for the same reasons.

SOFT SMOOTH FABRIC IS USED IN MANY OF THE FALL COSTUMES

By Miss Edna Stephany

Home Economics Representative
It's time for fall costumes to make their appearance, especially when days are cool and evenings are a bit chilly.

The slender silhouette marks the new fall clothes. Trim waistlines and hips with gently flaring skirt lines are points worth noting.

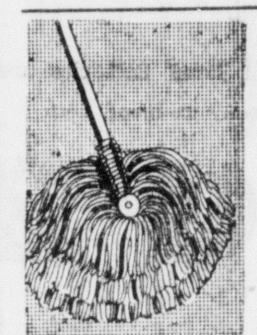

This year the front of the dress carries all the interest, backs are severely plain. Pockets are popular, but they do not detract from the slender silhouette.

The first woolen ensembles are essentially tailored in outline but with much interest in detail of finish. Every costume has some special feature. It from their ranching days, the film carries them through a series of daring exploits climaxed by the celebrated raid on Coffeyville, Kan., in 1892, when the gang was destroyed while staging the only double bank robbery in frontier history.

may be draping or folds of the fabric, or it may be in tucking. A variation of tucking is soft puff tucking which gives a soft blistered effect.

For several seasons, dress fabrics have been characterized by much surface interest. This fall there's a return of the fine simple crepes.

Other favorites are Roshanara crepe—a heavy corded crepe fabric, and duvety, its exact opposite—soft and velvety to the touch. Jersey weaves in wool, rayon, and silk are used for practically every type of costume from coat linings to wedding dresses. Satin is combined with other fabrics.

Velvet has returned as a trimming, and of all textures, velvet is the most flattering. Velvet is used for belts, collars and cuffs, jacket revers, pockets, rouchings, or even a whole bodice front. There is much combining of different textures of the same color. For example, satin with crepe, or a boucle wool with a smooth one.

Embroidery, done in matching color yarn, is popular for decorating daytime dresses. The wool ensemble, consisting of dress with matching jacket, is a practical first fall costume, and a very smart looking one too.

OPEN SEASON SEPT. 20TH

30 Athletes Have Reported To Coach Earl Druckenmiller
For The Team

SELLERSVILLE, Sept. 12—Six night football games are on the schedule for Sellersville-Perkasie High School this season. The opening game will be staged at Pottstown on September 20. The last night game is with Doylestown High at Sell-Perk on Nov. 15, but if the weather is not favorable, the game will be on Saturday, Nov. 16.

A. Groff Alderfer, the faculty manager, announced the newly completed schedule this week. Due to the fact that a number of night games had been pending, the schedule was released later than usual this year. Nine games complete the list.

There are 30 athletes on the squad. Coach Earl Druckenmiller is highly optimistic about his prospects because he has a good starting team of experienced players and several new boys who look good. He will be assisted in coaching the backfield by Henry Gutekunst, Perkasie grade school coach, who starred several seasons on the Muhlenberg College varsity.

The game at Pottstown will serve as the curtain raiser and it will give the coach a chance to see what his boys will do under the arc lights.

The night games have been scheduled as follows: September 20, Pottstown, away; October 4, Hatboro, at home; October 11, Jenkintown, away; October 18, Lansdale, at home; October 25, Southerton, at home; and November 15, Doylestown, at home. Three other games have been scheduled, September 28 the local team will play Springfield at Springfield, and on November 2 it will play Ambler at Ambler. The last game of the season will be played with Quakertown at that place. This game will take place on November 28.

LARGE CROWD SEES
RACES AT DOYLESTOWN

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 12—The first day's harness racing at the 18th annual Doylestown Fair furnished exciting entertainment for the 5000 fans who packed the stands. The Doylestown Fair track, resurfaced during the past year, was never in better or faster shape.

The very first heat of the afternoon, the 224 pace, produced the fastest time of the day when Victordale, by Abbedale, owned and driven by John F. Smith, Bordentown, N. J., was clocked in 2:07 1/2 in a field of six side-wheelers, going the last quarter of the first mile in 30 1/2 seconds.

In the second heat, Victordale was hard pressed by Hollydale, W. D. Shinn's Mt. Holly gelding, who was less than half a length behind at the finish, the time being 2:09 1/2. The Bordentown entry had no trouble in the third heat.

aid as well as a motion picture theatre in the west end, the attack was a failure.

The new barrage, which will be continued while London is threatened, is based upon new secret methods of predicting positions of attacking planes.

By Pierre J. Huss

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
BERLIN, Sept. 12—(INS)—Killing civilians and starting huge fires, British raiders bombed Hamburg, Bremen and other German cities as well as Berlin last night and early this morning, an official announcement said today, charging explosives were dropped on residential districts.

During these night attacks the RAF bombers struck again at the heart of Berlin, igniting fires among business buildings in the Tiergarten area. This was the same central section of the German capital attacked 24 hours earlier by British planes which dropped bombs on the Brandenburg gate, the American Embassy grounds and other famous spots in Berlin.

The latest official communique said: "Last night British planes again penetrated northern Germany and dropped incendiary and explosive bombs on the residential quarters of several cities, especially Hamburg and Bremen, where they caused numerous extensive conflagrations and damages."

"Victims numbered several killed, seriously or slightly injured. The total casualties have not yet been ascertained."

"Strong anti-aircraft fire and quick air raid precaution action as well as discipline of the population prevented extensive damages in Berlin."

The air raid alarm in Berlin lasted from 12:45 to 2:15 a. m. (6:45 to 8:15 p. m. EDT Wednesday).

An official statement describing this attack said:

"The Royal Air Force during the night again bombed non-military objectives in Germany. Some planes were forced to turn back by heavy anti-aircraft fire. They jettisoned their bombs."

"One factory building was hit in North Berlin and some bombs were found in the Tiergarten (a large park in central Berlin.)

"Incendiary bombs were dropped on residential and business buildings in the center of the city, causing small fires which were quickly extinguished."

Prior to these British raids, it was announced, German dive-bombers swept deep into the Thames Estuary district, setting six freighters and one destroyer on fire.

Despite a hail of anti-aircraft fire, the German planes swooped down on a large convoy of 20 merchant ships and several warcraft, destroying nearly one-third of the freighters.

This attack followed a fresh series of raids on London's docks in which further crippling blows were claimed to have been struck at the commercial heart of the British empire.

In addition to the London raids, German authorities said, military targets in Liverpool and others in southern England were "bombed effectively."

By Charles A. Smith

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
LONDON, Sept. 12—(INS)—A Nazi plan to visit utter devastation upon London was frustrated during the night by terrific curtains of anti-aircraft fire hurled into the skies by heavy-calibre defense batteries, British authorities asserted today.

These sources described the sheets of fire sent up against Nazi night raiders over the British capital as the heaviest anti-aircraft barrage the world has ever seen.

They declared that new, secretly mounted batteries protecting London had achieved increasing successes in beating off German bombers and last night had "saved" London from an attempt to level the capital to dust and rubble.

This was accomplished, it was claimed, by forcing raiders over London to tremendous altitudes during the night and holding them for the most part at the fringe of the city.
